OPP junior Tasered by colleague

▶ More than two officers in emotionally charged dispute ▶ No charges laid yet

An Ontario Provincial Police sergeant zapped a junior officer with an electrical blast from a Taser during a dispute in the force's Nottawasaga detachment, the Toronto Star has learned.

"You really don't want to encourage this type of performance management," Ontario Provincial Police Association president Jim Christie said on Thursday.

Names of the officers involved remain secret as the force investigates the incident.

OPP Insp. Dave Ross said the officer who was zapped wasn't injured in the emotionally charged dispute Oct. 14 at the detachment in Alliston in the Georgian Bay area.

While the Taser attack was confirmed, the name of the officer wielding the weapon remains secret as the force investigates the incident.

More than two officers were involved in the ugly incident, but Ross couldn't confirm that the officer with the Taser threatened others as well. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

YOU BELONG AT THE ROM

THERE'S NEVER BEEN A BETTER TIME TO VISIT THE ROM

It now costs much less to visit the Royal Ontario Museum. Beginning October 27, we significantly reduced admission prices because we believe everyone belongs at the ROM. We'll still be able to create remarkable exhibitions and events, and support our world-renowned curators and research programs, because now more people will be able to visit. By visiting the ROM, you're helping to sustain one of Ontario's essential educational and cultural destinations.

We know it's a difficult economic time, especially for families, and our new, lower admission costs respond to this. We've also expanded our student ticket category from 15 to 17 years old, to 15 to 25 years old, with student ID.

In order to offer significant price reductions to all of our visitors, every day of the week, the two-hour free period on Wednesdays has been discontinued. In keeping with the ROM's commitment to access, we're greatly expanding ROMCAN – the Museum's access initiative to support disadvantaged communities throughout the Province – to deliver 75,000 free tickets annually.

YOUR MUSEUM'S FUTURE

To be as important to our community in the future as we have been in the past, our 2014 centennial goal is to become more welcoming, more relevant, an essential destination for everyone who cares about culture and nature. Our first step, and a good way to recognize the spirit in which the ROM was created one hundred years ago, is to become more accessible through greater affordability.

OUTSTANDING EXHIBITIONS AND EVENTS CONTINUE

David Hockney's fresh flowers: Drawings on the iPhone and iPad continues to delight visitors and Maya: Secrets of their Ancient World will open on November 19. ROM for the Holidays and March Break will once again offer wonderful family programming.

Occupy Toronto prepares for winter weather

Nearly two weeks into their occupation, protesters at Toronto's St. James Park are scrambling to winter-proof their tent colony as temperatures continue to drop.

"We cannot stay in tents the way they are right now. People are going to get sick," protester Hira Gardezi, 32, said of the some 200 tents and makeshift tarp shelters in the park.

The Occupy Toronto group has yet to decide on plans for the cold weather, but a winterization committee was formed during a general assembly meeting earlier this week to begin preparations.

Gardezi, a winterization committee member, said the group has begun collecting warm clothes and blankets, and hopes to better insulate the sleeping area by congregating tents under a massive tarp to protect them from wind and snow.

Up to Ford to release copy of 911 call

Pressure mounts against mayor from within city hall to straighten out allegations he berated dispatcher

If Mayor Rob Ford asks Toronto police for a recording of the 911 call he made after he was ambushed at his home by This Hour Has 22 Minutes, they will release it to him.

"It could be released to him and he could do with it whatever he chose," said police spokesman Mark Pugash.

The disputed contents of that call have stirred fresh controversy for the embattled mayor following a CBC News report alleging Ford berated the 911 dispatcher in a profanity-laced tirade.

Ford admitted to using the F-word in the call, but has denied insulting the female operator, calling the CBC report "absolutely false."

Left-wing Coun. Joe Mihevc said "it's absolutely important for the tapes to be released to clear the air," adding Torontonians should know how their elected officials treat city staff.

The mayor called 911 when 22 Minutes cast member Mary Walsh — dressed in character as the outlandish Marg Delahunty — approached him in his driveway Monday morning. The episode aired Tuesday night.

The CBC alleged Thursday morning that when police didn't arrive right away, Ford turned on the dispatcher in a subsequent call, yelling: "You ... bitches! Don't you f–ing know? I'm Rob f–ing Ford, the mayor of this city!"

Ontario legal aid plan to relax rules

Move two decades after cuts wiped out coverage, even for poor Canada lags behind much of world

Ontario's legal aid plan gets 1,300 calls a day from people with legal problems, but if you're single and earn more than $10,800 a year or a family making more than $24,000 you're considered too rich to qualify for free assistance.

Now, sixteen years after the Ontario government tightened the rules in a massive overhaul of legal aid, it seems that's about to change.

The two men in charge of the province's legal aid system admit those income cut-offs are "inadequate."

Legal Aid Ontario chair John McCamus and president Bob Ward say they plan to loosen the rules over the next three years so more people are eligible for free help from a lawyer.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

▶ John McCamus.

The expansion, they say, will be funded through savings on the administrative side.

Raj Anand, a Law Society of Upper Canada bencher and a member of its access to justice committee, welcomed the move.

"I think the (current) financial eligibility guidelines are absolutely unacceptable," Anand said on Thursday after a report prepared by McCamus and Ward was distributed to members of the law society's governing body.

The report notes Legal Aid Ontario's cut-offs are substantially below the low-income threshold set by Statistics Canada.

Durham draws fire over rent collection

Durham politicians are calling for a probe into the region's collection of social housing rent arrears as the "scapegoat's" lawyer slams officials for their handling of the fiasco.

"The whole process has to be investigated now," regional Coun. John Neal said on Thursday. "Staff are supposed to follow policy that's laid down by councillors. If it wasn't followed, we want to know why."

The region was using an illegal method to collect back rent from low-income tenants in social housing. The employee who devised the procedure without the benefit of legal expertise was charged with fraud and three related offences.

In acquitting collections supervisor Joel Nicholson in Oshawa court this week, Justice Paul Bellefontaine concluded he "innocently" used the wrong process to retrieve money for the region.

Unions join Occupy protest

Demonstrators from Canadian Union of Postal Workers, Ontario Federation of Labour march on Bay Street

Hundreds of unionized workers joined Occupy Toronto protesters and marched through the streets of Toronto's financial district Thursday, shutting down part of Bay Street to traffic for more than an hour.

Demonstrators, including those from Ontario Federation of Labour and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, banged on the glass windows and doors of the flagship TD Canada Trust branch in the Toronto-Dominion Centre. The were chanting "We are the 99 per cent."

Inside the bank's doorway, five people sat cross-legged in protest.

Russ Rak, a retired General Motors employee with the Canadian Auto Workers' union, said there is too much poverty and unemployment and the government is doing nothing about it.

"We can't continue this way," he said.

The protesters marched south on Bay Street toward Queens Quay West at 3 p.m. Drivers honked horns in frustration as the crowds held up traffic on several streets, including Lake Shore Boulevard.

Occupy Toronto Wednesday won the support of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, which represents more than 54,000 postal workers from across the country.

An estimated 600 union members are in Toronto for the CUPW National Convention.

Transit staff rally in Newmarket

About 200 striking York Region transit workers rallied Thursday in Newmarket.

It was the first rally staged since 600 bus drivers and maintenance workers walked off the job early Monday at three companies contracted to provide bus service in the region.

The workers, employed by Viva, Miller Transit and First Student, met in a parkette next to the regional headquarters in York Region where union leaders told them to "stick to it."

The Amalgamated Transit Union says the main issues are the gap between wages and benefits between these workers and their counterparts elsewhere in the Greater Toronto Area.

The union says no talks are planned in the dispute, which has affected 85 bus routes or 60 per cent of the transit system in York Region.

Some of the protesters carried signs that read, "richest region, poorest pay."

HAUNTED HALLWAYS OF QUEEN'S

At last count, there were nearly a half-dozen ghosts reportedly haunting the hallways: Dan Bogart

Does the spirit of First World War hero Charles Rutherford still linger in the Legislature at Queen's Park?

Who is the white-clad woman seen sporadically wailing and moaning on the third floor of the building?

Some sensitive souls have felt the eerie presence of a soldier standing near the sergeant-at-arms desk inside the House where MPPs debate and pass laws.

Every Halloween, Dan Bogart, communications officer with the Legislative Assembly's parliamentary protocol office, offers to take staff on a historical "spooky" tour through various wings of the building.

"This building represents our past and our future," he said.

"The medium said there is a sense of service, a formal sense of atmosphere that resonates through the building ... that really points to the purpose of this building today ... They are still serving us. They are still here."

DAN BOGART, COMMUNICATIONS OFFICER

Bogart, who has an encyclopedic knowledge of the Legislature, reluctantly took the Toronto Star on tour as he doesn't wish the building to be known as a haunted one. But he wants the public to appreciate the history of the building that sits at the top of University Avenue

"Once, we had a medium on the tour," Bogart said. "We walked around for a bit and ... then when we went by the chamber he mentioned he saw a spirit in one of the seats, in the sergeant-at-arms chair."

The medium told Bogart he sensed the spirit's name was Charles. Capt. Charles Rutherford served as the sergeant-at-arms from 1934 to 1940 in former premier Mitchell Hepburn's Liberal government. He was also one of Canada's, if not the Commonwealth's, most distinguished veterans of the First World War.

Capt. Hunnicut takes on the death penalty

M*A*S*H star and social justice crusader Mike Farrell will be in Toronto Friday for a panel discussion on the death penalty, a fundraiser hosted by the Association in Defence of the Wrongly Convicted

We caught up with the 72-year-old actor, president of Death Penalty Focus, as he changed planes at Dallas/Fort Worth International Airport:

Where does your social activism come from?

I guess what I discovered over time is that, as a child, I lived in fear. My father was a very volcanic man whose behaviour was not unusual for men at the time, but it scared the hell out of me. And he made me very much aware and, as I later discovered, made me very angry about oppression and injustice by powerful people against people who are less powerful. He wasn't an abusive man in the sense we know of that today. But he was a two-fisted Irishman who drank a lot.

There's very little chance the death penalty will return to Canada, given a ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada 11 years ago finding it to be unconstitutional. Why are you coming here for a conference on this subject?

I go all over the world talking about the death penalty and I came in contact with the Association in Defence of the Wrongly Convicted through (Rubin) Hurricane Carter (the ex-boxer and now Toronto resident wrongly convicted of a 1966 triple murder in New Jersey).

I think the international community, of which Canada is certainly a part, is very powerful, much more powerful than it understands. And we're starting to see that today. Many of our (U.S.) Supreme Court justices are now looking at international law and the actions of different countries and are beginning to perceive the United States as an outlier in certain areas. And I think this is all very beneficial to us who are trying to end the death penalty, not just in the United States, but worldwide.

It's been almost 30 years since M*A*S*H went off the air. What do you think would have happened to your character (Capt. B.J. Hunnicut) over that time?

Ha-ha! Oh, I think B.J. would have gone home to Mill Valley (Calif.) to Peg and Erin and set up a (medical) practice and lived a wonderful, productive but low-key life.

PARK

STEVE RUSSELL/TORONTO STAR

Female ghosts said to be from the asylum

The female ghosts at the park are all believed to be former patients of the lunatic asylum that stood on the grounds prior to the building of the Legislature.

Limestone taken from the demolished asylum provides the foundation of Queen's Park. The five-storey building, made of the pink-coloured Credit Valley sandstone and Sackville New Brunswick stone, was completed in 1893.

A "malevolent" female spirit is said to be in the fourth floor attic.

"She is a strong presence and apparently a permanent presence — she's always there," said Queen's Park protocol officer David Bogart.

"She is quite vengeful."

The current speaker, Steve Peters, has lived at the speaker's apartment inside Queen's Park for the past four years.

While he has kept a file of ghost sightings and the history of strange occurrences at the Park, he has never experienced anything out of the ordinary.

Peters noted that some of the ghost stories he's heard seem to have translated from the old parliament building on Front Street.

"Whether the ghosts came up in the member's desks or portraits, I don't know," he said. "But somehow they've come from the old buildings to the new."

Extra seats plan not sitting well

NDP, Liberals attack the Tories over bid to expand the Commons

Canada's fastest growing provinces will get more seats in the Commons, the federal government said Thursday.

Quebec will also be allocated more seats "to ensure it's not under represented," Ottawa said.

The Harper government's initiative was better received than its previous bills, but no one was saying the Tories had struck the right balance.

Stephen Harper has bungled the process, pitting "region against region," said interim New Democrat Leader Nycole Turmel.

Interim Liberal Leader Bob Rae said the Commons cannot keep expanding or "we're going to be squeezed out of this building."

Quebec starts fight over gun registry

In what could become a federal-provincial battle, the Quebec government has sent a letter asking Ottawa to let it keep the data from the soon-to-be-destroyed federal long-gun registry.

The province's political parties were united on the subject Thursday.

The legislature, for the fourth time since 2006, passed a unanimous motion asking Ottawa to keep the registry.

Quebec says it hasn't ruled out the prospect of legal action if the Harper government turns it down.

The federal government says it can't help, because the Privacy Act forbids collecting personal data for one purpose then transferring it to be used for another purpose.

Botulism linked to Ontario bird deaths

Ontario's Ministry of Natural Resources says initial lab tests indicate botulism is responsible for a bird die-off along Georgian Bay.

Spokeswoman Jolanta Kowalski says lab results have determined a bird found on Christian Island two weeks ago died of Type E botulism.

Kowalski says other samples of the thousands of dead birds found are being tested and results are expected next week.

Scholarly apology to aboriginals

University president regrets role played in residential schools

In an unusual move, the president of a Canadian university has issued a formal apology to aboriginals across the country for his institution's failure to speak out against the "national shame" of residential schools.

But why would University of Manitoba's David Barnard apologize for something that had nothing to do with universities?

Because as watchdogs of human rights, they should have known, Barnard maintained Thursday in Halifax before Canada's Truth and Reconciliation Commission.

"Our institution failed to recognize or challenge the forced assimilation of aboriginal peoples and the subsequent loss of their language, culture and traditions. That was a grave mistake. It is our responsibility. We are sorry," he said.

Barnard apologized that his campus trained some of the clergy, educators, social workers, civil servants and politicians responsible for the "misguided assimilation policies" that robbed some 150,000 children of their sense of identity.

"Tragically, many children never returned. Those who did return were often strangers in their own homes and communities.

Physical, sexual and emotional abuses that occurred at residential schools were among the most deplorable acts committed against any people at any time in Canada's history," he said before the commission.

The commission is examining the impact of some 140 residential schools that moved native children far from their homes to give them a European-style education, convert them to Christianity and punish them for using their own language.

The commission was set up as part of a $4 billion class-action settlement between former students, the churches and the federal government.

Hey Gen Y: Let's talk about text

Some experts fear demise of live conversations may mean fewer ideas
Occupy Wall Street takes note

ELISABETH BRAW
@METRO.LU
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Jari Lompolo, a Finnish 20-year-old, has plenty of friends. But he rarely talks to them. Instead he types.

"I send about 50 text messages per day, and send Facebook messages," he explains. "I only call them if there's something urgent."

You can probably relate. You have friends you text, ones you email, some you call. "New media platforms are providing greater freedom for decisions about who to converse with, what those conversations are about, where and when conversations can happen, and how to have them," notes Gabriel Harp, research manager for Technology Horizons at the Institute for the Future.

But the migration to the keyboard poses a danger, warns Sherry Turkle, a professor of social sciences at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology: "Teenagers want the control that comes with texting or being able to 'compose' an instant message. This means that they are learning how to 'perform' — in a profile, as an avatar — but not (how to) respond to the give-and-take of conversation."

The disconnect bleeds into many fields. Toronto acting coach Erynn Brook notes: "It's extremely difficult to get younger actors to connect with their scene partners. Their ability to read subtle cues in body language and tone of voice, and to adapt to the person they're speaking with in a scene, has taken a dive in the past eight years."

▶ Are we all becoming zombified robo-texters?

She makes them have a real-life conversation once a day.

That's exactly what the Occupy Wall Street protesters are doing. The movement was organized online. But because they were aware that texting, tweeting and Facebooking are not enough, they've created real-life forums, called general assemblies, to discuss ideas. And of course they're standing arm-in-arm on the streets, discussing the cause amongst themselves and to the media. What a cool idea: Maybe this conversation thing will catch on?

Egypt swaps spy suspect for prisoners

U.S.-Israeli citizen had spent more than four months in Egyptian jail Even in Egypt, where hostility toward Israel runs high, arrest was widely ridiculed

MAHMUD KHALED/GETTY IMAGES

▶ The 25 Egyptian detainees released by Israel wave national flags as they cross into Egypt from Israel through the Taba crossing in the Sinai peninsula under heavy security on Thursday.

A U.S.-Israeli citizen arrested in Egypt as a suspected spy flew to freedom in Israel and into his mother's arms on Thursday after more than four months in jail, after a prisoner swap deal that has eased friction between the two countries.

A smiling Ilan Grapel, 27, looked fit after his one-hour flight from Cairo landed at Ben-Gurion International Airport outside Tel Aviv. On the tarmac, his tearful mother, Irene, who had travelled to Israel from her home in Queens, N.Y., clasped him in her arms.

TV footage did not capture his comments, but the U.S. Ambassador to Israel, Dan Shapiro, was heard telling him, "I'm very happy to see you here."

Grapel was scheduled to meet with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in Jerusalem.

Egypt traded the U.S.-born Grapel for 25 Egyptians, most of them smugglers, held in Israeli jails. The Egyptian prisoners passed through a land crossing from Israel as Grapel prepared to take off for Israel. TV broadcasts showed some of the Egyptian men kneeling to kiss the asphalt after crossing through a blue metal gate at the border crossing.

Israel denied the espionage allegations against Grapel, as did his family and friends, and his release helped to ease fears that relations would sour after Egypt's longtime president, Hosni Mubarak, was ousted in February. He was not charged.

Hours before the release, his father told The Associated Press that his son had been held in isolation in an unknown location and that when they last spoke two weeks ago, he seemed to be in "OK" condition and "getting fed."

"I am happy that this thing will be done and over with and that he will be able to resume his normal life away from Egypt," Daniel Grapel said in a telephone interview from his home in Queens, N.Y. He said his son and wife would remain in Israel for at least two days to meet with Israeli and American officials. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ilan Grapel

- Grapel was volunteering at a legal aid group in Cairo that resettles refugees when he was arrested and accused of spying for Israel during the grass roots revolt that overthrew Mubarak.
- He made no secret of his Israeli background, entered Egypt under his real name and his Facebook page had photos of him in an Israeli military uniform. Such openness about his identity suggested he was not a spy.

Italian rescue workers search through mud for survivors

Soldiers and civilian rescue workers battled knee-deep mud Thursday as they searched for survivors after flash floods and mudslides inundated picturesque villages around coastal areas of Liguria and Tuscany.

Coast guard cutters were also called in following reports that some of the missing may have been swept into the sea by the fury of the storm. At least nine people died and six others are missing.

Villages like Aulla in Tuscany, where two people are confirmed dead and one is listed as missing, were covered by mud that swept into homes and stores and caked parked cars.

"In an hour, the work of 10 years was lost," the Rev. Giovanni Perrini said as he inspected his parish church and nearby museum filled with mud.

In Borghetto Vara, a woman whose house was destroyed recovered her five kittens from the mud. "It is all that I have left, I have nothing else," the unidentified woman told the ANSA news agency.

Schools, businesses and stores were closed in many villages, railroad service was interrupted and the highway linking Genoa and Livorno was blocked.

"Everything was coming down," said Luigi Ribes, a resident of Mulazzo, one of the hard-hit towns. "I was seeing stones, trees, and every possible thing pass by." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Search operation

- Many towns are still isolated nearly 48 hours after the storms hit.
- A military officer told Sky Italia that 500 soldiers were brought in to help in the search operation and to clear roads and bridges.

Wake up and inhale your coffee

Simple plastic device delivers breathable lime-flavoured puffs of powdered caffeine to tongue

So tired you'd kill for some caffeine but there's no time for coffee break?

For all the time-crunched, sleep-deprived zombies in the modern workforce, AeroShot has developed a quick and efficient delivery system that provides the kick of a coffee without ever leaving your desk.

"Each inhaler contains three puffs, providing a total of 100 mgs of caffeine — about as much as in a large cup of coffee," reports Time magazine's Healthland online journal.

AeroShot was invented by Harvard biomedical engineering professor David Edwards. You may remember him as the inventor of the no-calorie inhalable chocolate product called Le Whif.

Each AeroShot puffer includes three shots — the recommended daily maximum.

AeroShot will only be available in Canada online Nov. 1 at labstoreparis.com. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Public Notice Regarding the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care's ("ministry") Collection, Use and Disclosure of Information under the Narcotics Safety and Awareness Act, 2010

The Narcotics Safety and Awareness Act, 2010 ("Act") authorizes the Minister of Health and Long-Term Care ("Minister") and the Executive Officer of Ontario Public Drug Programs ("Executive Officer") to collect, use and disclose information, including personal information, that relates to the prescribing and dispensing of narcotics and controlled substances ("monitored drugs") in Ontario, for the purposes of the Act. The purposes of the Act are to

- promote appropriate prescribing and dispensing practices for monitored drugs
- identify and reduce the abuse, misuse and diversion of monitored drugs, and
- reduce the risk of addiction and death resulting from the abuse or misuse of monitored drugs

Section 8 of the Act permits the Minister and the Executive Officer to direct a prescriber (e.g., doctor, dentist), a dispenser (e.g., pharmacist) or an operator of a pharmacy to disclose information about the monitored drugs they prescribe or dispense, to the Minister or the Executive Officer. For example, the Minister and the Executive Officer may direct the disclosure of information regarding

- the prescriber of the monitored drug (name, address, registration number)
- the person for whom the monitored drug is prescribed (name, address, date of birth, gender, unique number appearing on a form of identification listed on the ministry's website)
- the monitored drug itself (name, strength, quantity, length of therapy, directions for use, drug identification number, prescription number, date of prescription, date of dispensing)

In addition, if a person who has been prescribed a monitored drug authorizes someone else to pick up the drug from a dispenser, the Minister or the Executive Officer may direct a dispenser to disclose certain personal information about that person to the Minister or the Executive Officer (i.e., the person's name and address, and the distinguishing number appearing on a form of identification that verifies the person's name and address).

Once this information has been collected, the Minister and Executive Officer may only use or disclose it as permitted or required by the Act, the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, and the Personal Health Information Protection Act, 2004. For example, subsection 5.(5) of the Act permits the Minister and the Executive Officer to disclose personal information about a person who has been prescribed a monitored drug, to a prescriber, a dispenser or an operator of a pharmacy who has prescribed or dispensed such a drug to the person in the past.

The Ministry's statement of information practices, available at www.ontario.ca/privacy, describes how and for what purposes the Ministry may use and disclose personal health information in accordance with the Personal Health Information Protection Act, 2004.

MP in It Gets Better video has mixed message

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ David Sweet

A Conservative MP who once described homosexuality as a sin is refusing to explain his participation in a video honouring a gay teen who was bullied before his suicide.

David Sweet was once president of the socially conservative organization the Promise Keepers and was quoted in 2002 as saying homosexuality was a bad sexual practice.

In the video, Sweet repeats the popular slogan geared towards young gays and lesbians, "It Gets Better."

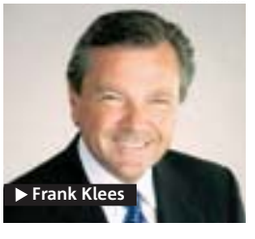
When asked about the video and his past remarks, Sweet's only comment was that he said what he said.

The Rights group EGALE Canada calls the video disrespectful because the government is not acting to help young gays and lesbians.

The Liberals want the prime minister to raise the issue of gay rights during a meeting of Commonwealth leaders this week. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Klees still fighting for role of Speaker

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE



▶ Frank Klees

Progressive Conservative Frank Klees will fight for the role of Speaker of the Ontario legislature, and remains hopeful he will gain the support needed to stay in the race.

Klees played down reports he was thinking about bowing out after angering his caucus, which has complained the move was akin to crossing the floor because it will eliminate the opposition's one-vote advantage.

"I never said I'm pondering dropping out of the Speaker's race," Klees said Thursday, after several articles suggested he was.

"I'm as committed to this as I was the day that I put my name forward."

Klees said he's simply been making calls to assess the kind of support he'll have, and is hoping to have between 40 and 50 members support him by either Friday or the end of the weekend.

Klees, who represents the riding of Newmarket-Aurora, said he had received promises of support from several Tories as well as "positive indications" from some Liberals. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tax dispute sparks riot

Migrant business owners have to pay higher taxes in Chinese town

Hundreds of migrant small business owners in an eastern Chinese town have protested over a tax dispute, some of them torching vehicles, in the latest unrest resulting from growing economic pressure and anger over the unfair treatment of migrants.

The group of children's clothing company owners protesting in the town of Zhili in Zhejiang province swelled to more than 600 people on Wednesday night, according to Huzhou Online, a state controlled news portal in the city of Huzhou, which oversees Zhili.

The protests started after one of the business owners refused to pay taxes and gathered a group to attack a tax collector, the report said Thursday, adding that some of the protesters blocked a highway and smashed and torched vehicles.

The Huzhou Online said police had detained five suspects and that another 23 suspects were being held as part of the investigation.

Around 100 protesters swarmed toward the township government offices, hurled rocks and destroyed street lamps, smashing the windows of more than 30 private cars, said the Zhejiang Online, a provincial news website. It added that several police and urban management officers were injured.

Protesters also smashed an Audi car, whose driver ran the vehicle into the group, knocking down 10 people, the Zhejiang Online said.

Facebook's latest plan is a cold one

Company building server farm on edge of the Arctic

Facebook says its new server farm on the edge of the Arctic Circle — its first outside the U.S. — will improve performance for European users of the social networking site.

After reviewing potential sites across Europe, Facebook confirmed Thursday it had picked the northern Swedish city of Lulea for the data centre partly because of the cold climate — crucial for keeping the servers cool — and access to renewable energy from nearby hydropower facilities.

The move reflects the growing international presence of the California-based site, which counts 800 million users worldwide.

"Facebook has more users outside the U.S. than inside," Facebook director of site operations Tom Furlong told The Associated Press. "It was time for us to expand in Europe."

▶ Kingston officers wait by the Kingston Mills Locks Thursday as the jury in the so-called honour-killing trial visits the canal where the crime allegedly took place.

Jury taken to see alleged crime spot

◐ Reconstruction expert cross-examined by lawyers for defendants ◐ Crown contends it was 'honour' killing

The defendants say it's the site of a tragic accident. The prosecution says it's a crime scene marking the horrific murder of three daughters and a wife.

On Thursday, in a judicial rarity, the seven men and five women of the jury in the trial of 58-year-old Mohammed Shafia, his second wife, Tooba Mohammad Yahya, 41, and their 20-year-old son Hamed, took a field trip to the Kingston Mills Locks.

They were taken around the area and shown the exact spots that are in question in the trial, centering on how the black Nissan in which all four victims were found made it into the Rideau Canal, where they were found dead, submerged, on June 30, 2009.

The jurors will have to eventually decide if the couple and their son, killed Zainab, 19; Sahar, 17 and Geeti, 13, along with Rona Amir Mohammad, 53.

Complex area

The Kingston Mills Locks location where the victims were found is a complex area to navigate.

- The vehicle first had to get around a rock outcropping, and then follow an S-shaped path to the edge of the canal's northern gate.
- Then there is the small gap between obstacles the car would have had to go through to actually make it into the water, as the Crown has suggested.

Seven billion and counting ...

The Earth can feed our exploding population, and feed it well But it cannot feed our way of life

ELISABETH BRAW
METRO WORLD NEWS

On Oct. 31, the world's 7,000,000,000th resident is expected to make an entrance. The United Nations Population Fund has invited every country to designate one "seven billion baby" whose arrival will be feted. But the milestone is hardly cause for celebration.

The UNFPA says the world is adding 78 million people a year, with 97% of that growth in developing countries. Scientists project food and water shortages and other disasters.

"But the population growth in itself isn't a problem," says researcher David Satterthwaite of the International Institute for Environment and Development. "The problem is the consumption that the growing population will engage in. The Earth can feed seven billion people, and they will live well. But it can't cope with seven billion people who all want to drive cars and travel by plane."

"One Donald Trump does more damage to the Earth than 50 million Indian slum dwellers."
DAVID SATTERTHWAITE

In fact, new research suggests the world can easily feed its population. "We can even feed nine billion people, and do so sustainably," says Johan Rockstrom, an expert on natural resource management at Stockholm University. "Increasing grain yields would solve 50% of the projected food shortage. We should also stop feeding primary foods like grains to animals and eat it ourselves."

Driving less, eating less meat: The Earth's well-being would be good for our waistlines, too. And, Satterthwaite says: "We can't tell China and India's growing middle classes to change their behaviour if the West doesn't."

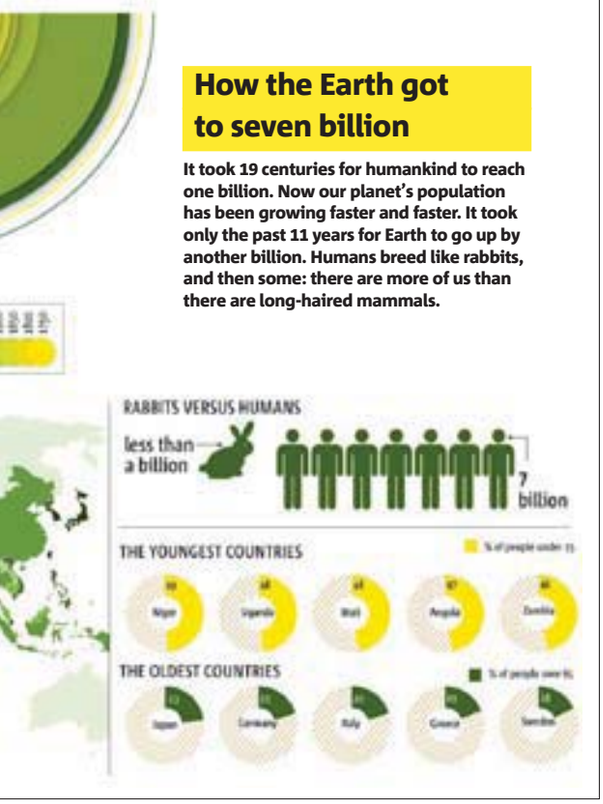
How the Earth got to seven billion

It took 19 centuries for humankind to reach one billion. Now our planet's population has been growing faster and faster. It took only the past 11 years for Earth to go up by another billion. Humans breed like rabbits, and then some: there are more of us than there are long-haired mammals.



Penalties or birth control?

Since 1950, average life expectancy has risen to 69 years from 48. During the same period the average number of children born to each woman has fallen by 50%, from five to 2.5 children.

The average woman in Japan, Russia and most of Europe gives birth to 1.5 children, while the average woman in many African countries has five. China has curbed growth with a one-child policy, but demographers dismiss such a solution for other countries. "It's absolutely not an option," says Ralph Hakkert of the UNFPA. "Countries should give people greater opportunities for choice on their reproduction, not impose penalties."

EU crafts plan to solve debt crisis

Stock markets, oil prices, euro surge, signalling investors' relief at outcome of contentious talks

European leaders clinched a deal Thursday they hope will mark a turning point in their two-year debt crisis, agreeing after a night of tense negotiations to have banks take bigger losses on Greece's debts and to boost the region's weapons against the market turmoil.

After months of dawdling and half-baked solutions, the leaders had been under immense pressure to finalize their plan to prevent the crisis from pushing Europe and much of the developed world back into recession and to protect their currency union from unravelling.

Bailout fund

- China has expressed sympathy for the 27-nation European Union, its biggest trading partner, but has yet to commit any cash to Europe's bailout fund.
- The fund's chief executive is due to visit Beijing on Friday to talk to potential investors.

The strategy unveiled after 10 hours of negotiations focused on three key points. These included a significant reduction in Greece's debts, a shoring up of the continent's banks, partially so they could sustain deeper losses on Greek bonds, and a reinforcement of a European bailout fund so it can serve as a €1 trillion ($1.39 trillion US) firewall to prevent larger economies like Italy and Spain from being dragged into the crisis.

The most difficult piece of the puzzle proved to be Greece, whose debts the leaders vowed to bring down to 120 per cent of its GDP by 2020. Under current conditions, they would have ballooned to 180 per cent.

Air Canada calls in feds

Airline's move starts the clock ticking to a potential strike by pilots

Air Canada has filed an official notice of dispute with the federal government to get conciliators involved in labour negotiations with its pilots, in an effort to accelerate a second round of talks.

The carrier's 2,900 pilots rejected a tentative agreement by a two-to-one margin in May.

"In view of the time elapsed since then, the company is of the view that the involvement of a federally appointed conciliator would facilitate and expedite this second round of negotiation and bring it to a successful conclusion as soon as possible," said spokesman Peter Fitzpatrick.

Last week, the pilots proposed a date to resume talks in the fall, but the Montreal-based carrier caught the employees off guard by filing the notice Wednesday.

Pilots association president Capt. Paul Strachan said they had been working over the past six months to prepare proposals that could be the basis for a new negotiated settlement. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Balanced budget needs 2 years: TD

The federal government may need two more years to balance its budget than it originally predicted, says a new analysis that takes into account weakening economic conditions.

During this spring's election campaign, the Harper government announced it would be able to balance the budget in 2014-15, thanks to a new cost-cutting initiative intended to find $11 billion over four years.

But the TD Bank's analysis taking into account new, subdued growth projections for the economy suggests that even if Ottawa books all the savings from departmental cuts, it likely won't be enough.

$5.2B TD Bank calculated that Ottawa is likely to still be $5.2 billion in the hole in 2014-15, and will record a $1.8-billion deficit the following year. The surplus in 2016-17 will be a tiny $2.5 billion.

Finance Minister Jim Flaherty fudged when asked directly this week if the 2014 date was still the target, choosing instead to say Ottawa was on track to balance "in the medium term." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maple Leaf in the black

Canada's largest food processor, Maple Leaf Foods Inc., returned to profitability in the third quarter, posting a net profit of $43 million.

The company announced last week that it was cutting 1,550 jobs, closing plants in four provinces and streamlining distribution as part of a $1.3-billion plan designed to reduce costs as it grapples with weaker sales and the high Canadian dollar, which makes exports expensive. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Surging gold prices lift Barrick profit to record level

Barrick Gold says its profits rose 45 per cent to a record $1.37 billion US in the third quarter, helped by the strength of higher gold prices.

Chief executive Aaron Regent said if gold prices remain strong, the company, which raised its dividend on Wednesday by 25 per cent, will continue to look at increasing its payment to shareholders.

"If the markets continue to perform as we expect, then clearly we'll be continuing to revisit our dividend levels," Regent told financial analysts. "We have been and continue to be a major beneficiary of improving prices and it has been reflected in our improving margins, record earnings and cash flow and returns on equity."

Regent said the company will also look to reduce the debt it took on in its $7.3-billion acquisition of copper producer Equinox Minerals earlier this year, but must balance that with investing in new projects and dividends.

The world's biggest gold miner increased its quarterly dividend to 15 cents per share, up from 12 cents, this week. THE CANADIAN PRESS

1 Rob Ford "ambushed"!: Toronto's mayor dialed 911 Monday morning after he was the "victim" of an early-morning "ambush" by Mary Walsh from CBC's satirical show "This Hour Has 22 Minutes." Dressed as her alter-ego character Marg Delahunty, Warrior Princess, she came to Ford's home to ask about his sinking polls. Ford's brother Doug hadn't heard of Margaret Atwood, so maybe he hadn't heard of Mary Walsh? Or satire?

2 Phil Kessel: If you're looking for a bandwagon to jump on right now Leafs Nation, try Phil Kessel's. The Toronto Maple Leafs right winger is off to a blazing start and leads the NHL in both goals and points. Things are going so well for him — finally — that he's decided to join the Twitter universe (@pkessel81), and already is nearing 30,000 followers.

3 Steve Jobs biography: Steve Jobs, a just-released biography of the Apple co-founder by Walter Isaacson, says Jobs came up with the company's iconic name while he was on a diet of fruits and vegetables, on his "fruitarian diet." Jobs thought the name sounded "fun, spirited and not intimidating." I'm naming my next company Bananas.

4 You're Not Alone: With suicide being the second leading cause of teen deaths in Canada, Ontario Shores Centre for Mental Health Sciences (OntarioShores.ca) has introduced a wonderful new adolescent mental-health-awareness curriculum. It's being piloted at 17 high schools in Ontario to encourage adolescents with mental-health concerns to get help. Let's hope this "You're Not Alone" campaign spreads to all schools.

5 The Cult of Lego: The new coffee-table book The Cult of Lego is for Adult Fans of LEGO, or AFOLs, who have a borderline obsession with these colourful plastic bricks. It's an inside look at the community of serious adult LEGO fans and builders, and the scale replicas they've done, from a 80,000-brick T. Rex skeleton to micro-scale versions of landmarks like Yankee Stadium. I'm holding out for a Tonka Truck collector's book.

6 Buffalo in Toronto: This Sunday, Canada gets another taste of what it would be like to have an NFL franchise, when the Buffalo Bills play a "home" game against the Washington Redskins at Rogers Centre. While the response to this Bills series in TO has been largely indifferent in recent years, it should be much fuller for the re-energized 4-2 Bills than it's been for Argos games this year. The "Argooooos" are 4-12.

7 Best inexpensive vinos: A new book with the great title Unquenchable: A Tipsy Quest for the World's Best Bargain Wines was released this week by renowned Canadian food writer Natalie MacLean. It's based on her worldwide adventure to wineries and vineyards in the search for the best value bottles. I'll be reading it over my bottle of 1811 Château d'Yquem. I wish.

COWGIRL GETS HER DUE. Sandra Day O'Connor made her mark in history as the first woman to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court, but she's still a hardworking cowgirl at heart, she said Wednesday.

An exhibit about her life opens this week at the National Cowgirl Museum and Hall of Fame in Fort Worth, Texas, a tribute to the 30th anniversary of her appointment to the high court.

"It is odd that a cowgirl ended up on the court, isn't it?" she said Wednesday, joking that her 1981 nomination by U.S. president Ronald Reagan stemmed from his own love of ranching.

"Probably because I had grown up on the back of a horse, he had more interest in me than other candidates."

O'Connor, 81, an El Paso native, spent summers on her family's Arizona ranch. She said her time on the ranch taught her responsibility and how to solve problems on her own. "Cowboys don't spend a lot of time telling you things. They just expect you to get things done and done right," O'Connor said. "But it's a great way to grow up."

Britain didn't want a piece of Saddam

JEROME DELAY/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

The statue of Saddam Hussein is toppled in Baghdad on April 9, 2003.

An English auction house says it failed to sell a chunk of buttock from the toppled statue of Iraq's ex-dictator Saddam Hussein.

Charles Hanson, of Hansons Auctioneers, said Thursday that bids for the relic — which he claimed had been chiselled from the infamous monument — failed to meet a six-figure reserve price.

Offers for the artifact, obtained by ex-British special forces soldier Nigel Ely after American soldiers toppled the bronze statue in Baghdad in April 2003, reached $34,000.

Hanson had expected international attention for what he described as the "backside of Saddam."

Synopsis

With a plot that mixes themes from history and Shakespeare's plays, Anonymous uses the backdrop of the struggle for succession between the Tudors and the Cecils as the Essex rebellion moves against Queen Elizabeth I (Vanessa Redgrave) to set the scene for the debut of Shakespeare's plays. But were they actually written by Shakespeare? The movie supposes it was Edward De Vere, Earl of Oxford (Rhys Ifans), who penned plays attributed to William Shakespeare.

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

To see, or not to see

Anonymous stumbles in places, but there's plenty for theatre buffs to swoon over

Richard: Mark, this is a sprawling story with many twists and turns. The downside is the film's sketchy casting. In flashbacks the queen and Edward appear to be the same age, but later after a major twist, are revealed to be 16 years apart. This kind of lack of attention to detail makes it difficult to follow the story in the first hour. Soon enough, however, all the players are straightened away and the pleasures of the story take hold.

MB: Sorry, but is the authorship of Shakespeare's plays a burning issue for anyone? Whenever they try to make Shakespeare 'sexy' I want to hurl. And yet, there were a lot of things to like about the movie. Pageantry geeks will swoon for the production design, theatre buffs will groove to the re-creations of the Elizabethan stage, and middle age women will get hot flashes at all the bodice ripping. But why was the story so hard to follow?

RC: It's hard to follow because it assumes we know the political history and can juggle an abundance of powdered wigs with royal titles, many of whom kind of look alike. Having said that though, I think Ifans is terrific here. A little of him usually goes a long way but he's doing some interesting work here.

MB: Is it racist to say that all British fops in the same facial hair look alike? I hope not ... You're right about Ifans — he's the soul of a very messy movie and anchors it with his sad eyes. Lots of good acting, (David Thewlis, Joely Richardson, and Sebastian Armesto as Ben Johnson) and lots of good overacting, too, from the rest of the cast. One of the things that will jolt most viewers is the way Shakespeare himself is portrayed — as a murderous, scheming, illiterate; so antithetical to our reverence for the man that I found it quite unnerving.

RC: I don't think Anonymous has much to do with historical fact — there is no real life evidence that the Earl of Oxford penned the plays — it's just a palette for a twisted tale about how politics and art intersect, and the written word's ability to instigate change.

MB: I know that's what the movie aims for, but it doesn't quite pull it off. There are two stories here: one is a literary biopic, the other a political thriller, and they don't exactly mesh. But I think it's a movie that would become clearer after a second viewing.

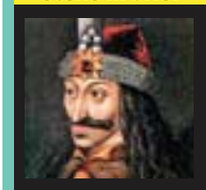
Scene in brief



The truth is out: Prince Charles says he is related to Vlad the Impaler, the cruel 15th-century Romanian warlord who helped inspire Bram Stoker's 1897 vampire novel Dracula. He makes the comments on an upcoming TV show to promote his interest in protecting the forests of Romania's Transylvania region.

Sheen finds The Way

Actor talks about his new film and his close friendship with Tree of Life director Terrence Malick

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

Tree of Life director Terrence Malick has had an enormous impact on actor Martin Sheen's life.

"He's one of the great, great people," says Sheen, "and one of the most mysterious, wonderful characters."

Professionally, the director gave Sheen the role that broke him out of the episodic television grind and made him a movie star. As Kit Carruthers in Badlands, Sheen won raves and was set upon a career path that would see him star in Apocalypse Now and win a collection of Golden Globes and Screen Actors Guild awards for playing President Bartlet on The West Wing.

Personally, however, Malick's influence has been even more profound. A formerly lapsed Catholic, Sheen's faith was restored after meaningful discussions with Malick 30 years ago.

The pair has stayed in touch despite Malick's notoriously reclusive lifestyle.

"He is the most shy person I have ever met in my life," says Sheen.

"He was living in Paris years ago and we got reacquainted in 1981. One day we were walking down the street and somebody recognized me and he kept going. I lost him totally! I said, 'Hey, how are you guys?' and boom, he was gone.

"He lives in Texas with his wife, who is the love of his life. They grew up together and went to school together but it took two wives in between to get back to that. I adore him."

The two old friends still engage in deep conversations, says Sheen, and it's possible that indirectly their tête-à-têtes helped the actor get into his latest film, The Way.

"We talk about family," Sheen says.

"We talk about spirituality. We talk about the mystery of life."

All topics covered in the new film.

Directed by his son Emilio Estevez, it gives Sheen his first chance to carry a film since the days of Apocalypse Now.

Describing the movie as a story about "loss, recovery and healing, with some laughs along the way," Sheen hands in a touching performance as Tom, a man struggling to deal with the death of his son.

What begins as a physical trek on the El camino de Santiago from France to Spain turns into a spiritual pilgrimage as Tom re-examines and rediscovers his faith.

Sheen is out tub-thumping the film to the press, but there is one person he surely won't be deliberating it with — his friend Malick.

"We have never discussed films," he says.

Murphy, Stiller live up to tall order in Heist

Two comedians work together for the first time in Tower Heist Largely improvised, film covers timely topic

HEIDI PATALANO
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN NEW YORK

It's hard to believe that two of the most prominent figures in modern comedy, Eddie Murphy, 50, and Ben Stiller, 45, hadn't crossed paths before their most recent release, Tower Heist.

But not surprisingly, the two were anxious to work together for this movie, which was largely impro-

Filming in New York

Since this film centres around a prominent Central Park building, Stiller commented on the most noticeable contrasts between L.A. and New York.

"I think what you notice when you're in L.A. is that you don't have to deal with the elements. Jerry Seinfeld said to me recently, 'I like living in New York because it's harder.' He likes that. He likes that you have to deal with the winter and just life is a little bit tougher. It's more in your face. I think that's something that shapes who New Yorkers are. There's a lot of people in one place and I think that's a really good thing too – where people have to interact with each other on a daily basis" vised. "The comedy comes out of the characters so for me, I wasn't looking to see how funny I could be," Stiller says.

"And then of course when you have Eddie Murphy in the movie, it takes a lot of the pressure off. I was really happy he was in the film. I never look to be funnier because that just doesn't work.

"Does that make sense?" Stiller pauses in front of a packed room of journalists mocking himself with an imaginary headline.

"Stiller: Not Looking to be Funnier. Maybe he should," he says.

Murphy had the original idea for Tower Heist years ago, though it's since been given a very timely twist.

It centres around a Bernie Madoff-like businessman (played by Alan Alda) who swindles his employees out of their pensions. Angered by the fraud, some rogue vigilantes out of the group devise a plan to steal the money back. Given that the 'Occupy' movement persists in the U.S. and elsewhere, Stiller noted the connection between the film and the headlines.

"I think there's a lot of frustration out there that's valid and that's probably what the Occupy Wall Street is an expression of," he says. "There's a lot of frustration in terms of where we're at in this economic situation and so I understand where it's coming from."

But don't get them wrong. Tower Heist is no grim exploration of dire economic times. With the ensemble cast that includes Casey Affleck, Matthew Broderick, Michael Pena and Gabourey Sidibe, there were many spontaneously hilarious moments in the film.

Murphy remembers — or perhaps fabricates? — filming a scene in which his character flirts with Sidibe's.

"[Director Brett Ratner] whispered to the [director of photography] 'dim the lights!' And then, all of a sudden, Gabourey's top is off," he says. "And then it became a whole different type of scene. Ben was completely nude, just watching. I'm saying, 'what's happening? What's happening?' [Producer Brian Grazer] is like, 'just go with it.'

"We go with it for about 40 minutes. I've never been in a scene like that. You'll have to get the DVD. It's a special feature."

See it twice ●●●●● | See it now ●●●● | Worth watching ●●● | Yawn ●● | Don't bother ●

Puss in Boots
Genre: Animation/Comedy
Director: Chris Miller
Stars: Antonio Banderas, Salma Hayek
●●●½

A spin-off of the Shrek series, Puss in Boots returns Antonio Banderas to the character he was born to voice. An outlaw cat with Latin attitude, Puss seeks out riches in magic beans that grow into that fabled giant beanstalk that leads to the goose that lays golden eggs. While the plot and forced parody of fairy tale folklore could use some refinement, most characters, slick animation and the Zorro-like adventure keep Puss purring along.

STEVE GOW

Buck
Genre: Documentary
Director: Cindy Meehl
Stars: Buck Brannaman, Robert Redford
●●

Aside from a thrilling late sequence in which its subject tries to tame an especially wild equine, Cindy Meehl's Buck is mostly boring stuff: a portrait of a real-life "horse whisperer" given to whispering platitudes about the relationship between men and horses. Buck Brannaman may be a kind, interesting and talented man, but he's also rather dull.

ADAM NAYMAN

Martha Marcy May Marlene
Genre: Thriller
Director: Sean Durkin
Stars: Elizabeth Olsen, Sarah Paulson, John Hawkes
●●●●

Opening with a young woman escaping a Manson-esque cult, we know this isn't going be an ordinary thriller. The titular character's harrowing ordeal is revealed in flashbacks as she readjusts to real-life at her sister's cottage. First time director Sean Durkin ratchet's up the tension amidst fears her "family" will come looking for her in a film that proves the threat of violence is far more frightening than the real thing.

IAN GORMELY

The Rum Diary
Genre: Drama
Director: Bruce Robinson
Stars: Johnny Depp, Giovanni Ribisi, Aaron Eckhart
●●●

On paper, the Rum Diary sounds like a can't-miss film: Johnny Depp taking on another semi-autobiographical Hunter S. Thompson character, with counter-culture director Bruce Robinson coming out of a long and happy retirement to bring it to life. Unfortunately, there wasn't an equally impressive editor on board to keep the two in line as they pay tribute to the late Thompson. Based on a manuscript left hidden in the author's attic until he and Depp found it and decided to publish it, the Rum Diary is a bit all over the place and unpolished as a book. And it appears a reverence for Thompson kept the filmmakers from addressing those problems in the transition to the screen.

NED EHRBAR

Cell 211
Genre: Drama
Director: Daniel Monzón
Stars: Alberto Ammann, Luis Tosar
●●●●

Juan, a newly hired prison guard touring the facility, is injured by falling masonry, and placed in Cell 211 just as a riot breaks out. A bad luck cell has been done before but this award-winning Spanish brings psychological depth and realism. Juan, now posing as an inmate to save his life, must react and adapt quickly to survive scrutiny by the prison alpha dog. He's always moments away from discovery, and his moral convictions begin to realign in this slow burning, unpredictable and original thriller.

ANNE BRODIE

The Skin I Live In
Genre: Drama
Director: Pedro Almodovar
Stars: Antonio Banderas, Elena Anaya
●●●½

Pedro Almodovar films may not be for everyone but The Skin I Live In will surely turn a few moviegoers off. In the gender-bending thriller, Antonio Banderas wonderfully plays a geneticist testing an artificial skin on a woman he keeps locked in his house. While most Almodovar films aren't what they seem, this drama has a particular twist and while he adds one too many subplots, Skin is still seductively satisfying.

STEVE GOW

In Time
Genre: Action
Director: Andrew Niccol
Stars: Justin Timberlake, Amanda Seyfried
●½

He may be able to sing and dance but Justin Timberlake is no movie star and In Time is proof of that. A sci-fi thriller that stalls in the opening minutes, In Time attempts to posit a future where time is literally money. While hotel rooms will cost months off your mortality in the future, this heavy-handed Twilight Zone-like spectacle will only cost you about 2 hours — but even that won't be worth it.

STEVE GOW

Sophie
Genre: Family
Director: Lief Bristow
Stars: Brittany Bristow, John Rhys-Davies, Erica Durance, Deborah Kara-Unger
●●½

The timing couldn't be worse for a film about a private family owned wild animal preserve, considering the recent horrors in Ohio. Exotic animals in zoos and circuses are hot button points at the best of times and Sophie reflects this painful reality. A 17-year old ballerina (Bristow) is devastated when her parents sell her five-tonne pet elephant to a circus where she's mistreated. But Sophie's heroic, dogged efforts to save Sheba are heartening. The stoniest hearts will get a kick out of their dance number, and elegant Rhys-Davies is extra hammy as the circus owner.

There's magic in the fair.

The Magic is Back. Experience the excitement of this year's Royal Winter Fair. Whether it's a Grand Prix Show Jumping Competition with Olympic Gold Medalist Eric Lamaze, a visit by the star of CBC's Heartland Amber Marshall, a 900-pound pumpkin, Horse Hockey with NHL great Darcy Tucker, or our Annual Celebrity Chef Competition featuring Food Network Canada star Lynn Crawford, there's something for everyone to discover.

ROCKET MAN LOOKING TO LIFT OFF ONCE AGAIN

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

Before you ask, William Shatner knows that he has a, uh, distinctive singing style.

And he's OK with that. "My intentions for The Transformed Man (Shatner's 1968 debut record) was to combine great literature of the past with great song lyrics of the present," he says, "but not everyone understood that.

"I was invited on The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson to perform. But in rehearsals, the producer said 'Bill, this is a six minute piece. Do either the literature or the song because you can't do both.' So I did the song.

"As I was doing my thing, I looked over at Carson who mouthed to Ed McMahon 'What. The. F-ck? It wasn't my finest hour."

The Transformed Man languished for years and nothing else was forthcoming from Captain Kirk. Until, that is, a young musician named Ben Folds found a copy and became transfixed with it. That led to some collaborations on Folds' 1998 album, Fear of Pop. Then in 2004, Folds produced Has Been, a Shatner album that featured everyone from Aimee Man to Henry Rollins to British writer Nick Hornby. His cover of Pulp's Common People became something of an alt-radio hit.

Things snowballed. A ballet — William Shatner's Gonzo Ballet — was staged by a company in Milwaukee to great acclaim. Which brings us to Seeking Major Tom.

"We came up with this concept of exploring what happened to Bowie's Major Tom character after he left the capsule. That story is told through a series of 20 science fiction-theme songs featuring some of the biggest names in music."

Ginnifer Goodwin's fairy tale comes true

Actress lands magical role of Snow White in ABC's new hit TV series Once Upon A Time

Once upon a time, a beautiful actress won the role of fairy-tale heroine Snow White in an enchanting new series.

Not only that, but the actress scored a parallel role. She would also play schoolteacher Mary Margaret Blanchard, a present-day transformation of Snow White who, thanks to a curse by the Evil Queen, is trapped in the village of Storybrooke, Maine, with fellow fairy-tale folk – all of whom have forgotten their pasts as storybook characters and, now stranded in the artifice of real life, been denied every fairy-tale character's birthright: the promise of a happy ending.

The actress, of course, is Ginnifer Goodwin, whose series, Once Upon a Time, has emerged as one of the fall season's biggest hits. It airs its second episode Sunday at 8 p.m. Eastern on ABC. Also starring on the show are Josh Dallas, Lana Parrilla, Robert Carlyle, Jared Gilmore and Jennifer Morrison as Emma Swan, a Boston bail bondswoman who is drawn into the mystery of Storybrooke (and who turns out to be Snow White's long-lost daughter).

Once has arrived alongside NBC's Grimm, which, inspired by Grimm's classic fairy tales, pits a homicide detective against mythological creatures living among humans in his Portland, Ore., hometown. It premieres Friday at 9 p.m. Eastern.

The series opens with Prince Charming awakening the poisoned Snow White with a kiss. That was on last week's premiere (which drew a fantastic 13 million viewers, even up against Fox's World Series and NBC's Sunday Night Football).

Much to Goodwin's surprise, Mary Margaret (whose pixie haircut is the style Goodwin has sported for years beneath the wigs other characters obliged her to wear) has proved to be far more demanding than Snow White to play.

"I'm used to building a character based on that character's life experiences," she says. But Mary Margaret's life as Snow White is stripped from her memory, replaced by the curse of the Evil Queen, who, in effect, has reimagined her."

Now filming her 10th episode, "Once Upon a Time" has been loads of fun for Goodwin, including the action scenes she plays as Snow White – a first for her.

"My favourite day thus far was the day I ended up in the emergency room getting stitches in my face," she reports."I'm still wearing a splint on my finger, months later," she adds, exhibiting it proudly.

Jonah Hill gets animated

Hollywood funnyman premieres new cartoon series he produces called Allen Gregory ◗ Show airs Sunday night, alongside Fanily Guy, The Simpson

HO-SHAW /THE CANADIAN PRES

▶ The new series tells the story of Allen Gregory De Longpre, a pretentious seven-year-old, voiced by Jonah Hill.

Film star Jonah Hill says he was keen to create an animated TV series because it allowed him to tackle roles he wouldn't otherwise get. Specifically, a pompous seven-year-old trying to make it through first grade.

"I couldn't play that in real life," Hill noted dryly in a recent conference call with reporters to promote his new series, Allen Gregory.

The Superbad star created, writes, produces and provides the lead voice in the new Fox series about a privileged home-schooled kid who's every bit as pretentious as his full name — Allen Gregory De Longpre.

The bespectacled Allen Gregory may be young, but he seems to have accomplished much: he claims to have composed operas, lobbied congress, written novels and dated actress Chloe Sevigny.

But his greatest challenge could be one most kids take in stride — when his wealthy parents fall on hard times, they return to the work force and send Allen Gregory to elementary school. Things do not go smoothly.

"Anyone catch Charlie Rose the evening before last?" the pint-sized snob asks classmates while pouring himself a glass of wine at the lunch table.

It's basically your classic fish-out-of-water tale, says Hill, noting the tough-talking Allen Gregory reveals himself to be an awkward outsider who just wants to fit in.

"He has all this false bravado and condescension and arrogance and everything, but it's all covering up the fact that he's just insecure and wants to be accepted by these people," says Hill, who created the show with writing partners Jarrad Paul and Andrew Mogel.

Hill gained notoriety as a potty-mouthed sidekick in 2007's Superbad, was part of Seth Rogen's uncouth cadre in Knocked Up, and played a struggling stand-up comic in Funny People The 27-year-old says he's deeply involved in the minutiae of Allen Gregory, which airs on Global in Canada.

- Says he had food poisoning

Steven Tyler had a painful fall in his hotel room while on tour in Paraguay, but he insists it was food poisoning and not a relapse.

“I started to get sick, and I just fell on my face,” he says in an interview with The Today Show. “I just passed out.”

The American Idol judge and Aerosmith frontman, who has battled drug and alcohol dependence in the past, understands why some people won’t believe his story.

“I get that people think that,” he says. “It still bothers me a little, but it’s something that I have to have to deal with for the rest of my life.” METRO

MJ still raking in money

Michael Jackson has topped Forbes magazine’s list of top-earning dead celebrities.

The King of Pop brought in approximately $170 million between October 2010 and October 2011, according to the magazine.

And while the Jackson estate earned more than $100 million the previous year — when he also took the top spot on this list — he’s still far ahead of Elvis Presley, who takes second place this year with $55 million. METRO

Bruce Willis has fatherhood, killing Ashton on his mind

Bruce Willis and his wife, Emma Heming, are reportedly expecting their first child together, according to Life & Style.

“Emma is showing,” a source says.

The pair married in 2009. Unfortunately, Willis’ celebration may be tempered by the personal troubles of his ex-wife, Demi Moore, caused by Ashton Kutcher’s cheating scandal.

“When Bruce found out, he flipped. He plans to confront Ashton and give him a huge talking-to,” the source says.

“Bruce believes if you mess with someone he loves, you mess with him. He trusted Ashton not to hurt his family and is planning to give him a piece of his mind. When he finally catches up with him it won’t be pretty.” METRO

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

I’m going to send you into the weekend with two bits of depressing information. 1. Snooki is a New York Times bestseller for this year’s magnum opus, A Shore Thing.

2. She has yet another book out called Confessions of a Guidette, which promises to help you join the Snooki Style Revolution (considering she looks like a bad witch Oompa-Loompa, this is one revolution I will not be signing up for).

So for your reading pleasure, here are some outtakes of this work of art, which Snooki is currently promoting.

“A guidette has to know how to have fun anywhere. Like, if you’re stuck in a cardboard box, you have to rock it.”

▶ Nicole (Snooki) Polizzi

“My biggest nightmare is waking up pale. Or without eyelashes.”
NICOLE (SNOOKI) POLIZZI

“LOVE my slippers. It’s like wearing beds on your feet.”

“If you can smell hair gel from a mile away, it signals guido mating season.”

If I’m stuck in a cardboard box, I’d probably yell for help instead of trying to rock out. But then again, I’m not a best-selling author, so what do I know?

While Justin Timberlake and the guys from The Lonely Island are today's golden boys of Saturday Night Live, I remember when Dan Aykroyd ruled. I met Mr. Ghostbuster and he's a cool guy with a knack for marketing — especially when it comes to booze.

Though available all year long, his hard liquor masterpiece Crystal Head Vodka ($44.98 - $59.95) is the ultimate adult indulgence at Halloween.

Conceived as an ode to whatever they were talking about in that last Indiana Jones movie, the made in Newfoundland spirit is quadruple-distilled and triple-filtered through Herkimer diamond crystals. Sure, the gemstone filtration is a gimmick, but the vodka is smooth and sophisticated with a light touch of anise-like flavour. Did I mention it comes in a funky skull-shaped bottle?

Ice it up and shoot it straight or mix it in your favourite cocktail recipe. Either way, this crystal is way ahead of the competition in the lucrative ultra-premium vodka market and it's Canadian. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Devilishly delicious dip

This Halloween treat does double duty: It'll fill up the goblins and ward off vamps with its hint of garlic

DINNER EXPRESS

EMILY RICHARDS
FOOD@METRONEWS.CA

Set the scary mood by serving your family and guests a dip that is dangerously delicious.

Leave out the eye of newt and toe of frog and add a hint of cumin and a clove of garlic to the recipe for Grave Yard Goop.

Buttering and baking the flour tortillas will make the dipping 'tombstones' sweet and savoury.

This frightfully delightful dip is sure to help ward off vampires and creatures of the night as well.

Preparation:

1. In food processor, puree beans until fairly smooth. Add cream cheese, onions and cream and puree until smooth. Pulse in Cheddar cheese, garlic and cumin until combined.
2. Spread the mixture into 9 or 10- inch (23 or 25 cm) pie plate and sprinkle olives in centre. Sprinkle lettuce around edges. Then cover and refrigerate it for at least 30 minutes.
3. Preheat oven to 400˚F (200˚C). Cut out ghostly shapes like tombstones, cats and pumpkins out of flour tortillas. Brush with butter and place on large baking sheet. Bake for about 8 minutes or until just golden. Let cool completely.
4. Place some toasted tortillas into the dip to create a graveyard scene and serve remaining ones alongside. EMILY RICHARDS FOR DAIRYGOODNESS.CA (EMILY IS A PROFESSIONAL HOME ECONOMIST, COOKBOOK AUTHOR AND A TV CELEBRITY CHEF. FOR MORE, VISIT EMILYRICHARDSCOOKS.CA)

Ingredients:

- 1 can (19 oz/540 mL) black beans, drained and rinsed

▶ The St. Louis Cardinals celebrate after David Freese hit a walk-off solo home run in the 11th inning on Thursday to win Game 6 of the World Series.

One game for the glory

Cardinals rally twice then beat Rangers in 11th inning to take World Series to the limit

CARDINALS	RANGERS
10	9

Twice down to their last strike, the St. Louis Cardinals kept rallying to win one of baseball's greatest thrillers.

David Freese completed a startling night of comebacks with a home run leading off the bottom of the 11th inning to beat Texas 10-9 on Thursday night, and suddenly fans all over got something they have waited forever to see: Game 7 in the World Series.

"Man that was incredible," Freese said. "But we fought back, we made some mistakes early on, but the way the Cardinals and we've all have been playing lately, you expect to come back like this. This is just a good feeling and I'm pumped we're playing tomorrow.

"Just an incredible feeling, seeing all my teammates at the dish waiting for me."

Freese, the hometown boy who made good, had already written himself into St. Louis lore in Game 6 with a two-strike, two-out, two-run triple in the ninth off Rangers closer Neftali Feliz that made it 7-all.

"Initially I was like 'Are you kidding me?' My first AB off Feliz in this situation ever," Freese said.

"I just beared down, got a pitch to hit. Initially I thought I hit it pretty good, I thought (right fielder Nelson Cruz) was going to grab it, so just a lot of emotions on that one."

After banged-up Josh Hamilton hit a two-run homer in the Texas 10th, St. Louis again tied it when Lance Berkman hit a two-out single on a 2-2 pitch from Scott Feldman.

Busch Stadium was still in frenzy when Freese opened the 11th with a leadoff shot over the centre field wall off Mark Lowe.

Freese thrust his arm in the air as he rounded first base, and the crowd was delirious.

Next up on Friday night, the first Game 7 in the World Series since the Angels beat San Francisco in 2002.

Canada's women's soccer team claimed its first Pan American Games gold medal in dramatic fashion Thursday.

LEAFS LEGEND

Sundin returns to ACC

Mats Sundin has made peace with the fact he'll never again experience the feeling of standing in an arena tunnel before a big game.

But the all-time leading scorer of the Toronto Maple Leafs is sure to stir up some emotions when he makes his return to Air Canada Centre on Saturday night to watch his former team take on the Pittsburgh Penguins.

"I'm looking forward to it," Sundin said Thursday. "I've watched a couple games on TV that the Leafs played this year and the team looked great."

Sundin will be sitting alongside Larry Tanenbaum, the chairman of Maple Leaf Sports & Entertainment, during his first visit to the arena since visiting as a member of the Vancouver Canucks in February 2009.

Enough time has passed since Sundin wore a Leafs sweater — none of his former teammates still play here — for him to start being celebrated as part of the franchise's alumni.

"I'm just happy that the Leafs want to have a relationship with me," said Sundin. "I think it's very important for me. As I said, I spent the best part of my career with the Toronto Maple Leafs and Toronto is my second home. It feels like coming home every time I come here."

Toronto wins first game in renovated Garden

Joffrey Lupul and Clarke MacArthur scored 4:22 apart in the third period as the Toronto Maple Leafs broke open a tie game and spoiled the New York Rangers' long-awaited return to renovated Madison Square Garden with a 4-2 victory on Thursday night.

Lupul scored off a rebound in a scrum in front of Henrik Lundqvist to make it 2-1 with his fifth of the season, and MacArthur made it a two-goal edge with his first — firing a shot from the left circle during a 2-on-1 break that eluded Lundqvist's leg at 6:33.

Matthew Lombardi scored his first in the second period, and Mike Brown made it 4-1 in the third.

Dan Girardi scored in the first, and Michael Del Zotto got it to 4-2 with 4:34 remaining for the Rangers, who went 3-2-2 on a season-starting road trip because of the work being done at their home rink. New York's home opener, the last in the NHL, kicked off a six-game homestand. It was the Rangers' fifth straight game against a Canadian opponent.

The little running back who could

Bills' Jackson didn't have an easy road to NFL stardom ◐ Undersized athlete went undrafted out of college

To all the tiny waifs taking a beating on high school football fields, we offer Fred Jackson.

Never mind that you're undersized and overmatched or stuck behind some first-string stud who gets the yards and carries and glory.

Jackson stands as testament today to perseverance and dedication and enough belief in oneself that overcoming long odds is nothing.

An inspiration?

Probably.

After all, the Buffalo Bills running back has emerged from such humble beginnings to stand today as the NFL's leader in yards per carry, a guy averaging more than 100 yards a game and a fellow sixth in the league in rushing after six games.

If the Bills are one of the more surprising NFL stories of the year, 4-2 heading into Sunday's game with the Washington Redskins at the Rogers Centre, Jackson's one of the stars of that tale.

"I was all of 5-8, 145 pounds when I was in high school and I was the back-up running back," Jackson said at Ralph Wilson Stadium in Orchard Park, N.Y., this week.

"And I was the back-up running back behind the state's leading rusher. … He went to TCU and then Nebraska. It was one of those things, for me to get where I wanted to be, I was going to have to work right out of high school."

Work, he did.

There were no big BCS schools clamouring to offer him full rides as a featured back. Instead he found himself at something called Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

▶ Fred Jackson is sixth in the NFL in rushing.

It was an outpost, pure and simple but Jackson wasn't about to let go of his dream.

He was undrafted and unwanted out of college, hardly a surprise, and failed in a couple of NFL tryouts.

He kicked around the minor leagues of indoor football in North America and played a year in Europe.

It wasn't until a call from Marv Levy, one of Coe's more celebrated graduates and then the general manager of the Bills, that Jackson felt remotely close to full-time NFL employment.

He took that opportunity and ran with it, his skills so impressive that the Bills let go of Marshawn Lynch, the presumptive go-to back on the roster and then watched as Jackson beat out C.J. Spiller, a pick of current Bills GM Buddy Nix.

And every day, the 30-year-old Jackson realizes how far he's come, how he's beaten the odds, and vows to keep beating them.

"I think I have to think about it every day," he said. "It's what's motivating me to be here. It's something that I try to reflect on as much as possible." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Can Ticats find footing in two QB tango?

CFL EXTRA POINTS

DAN TOTH
TORONTO@METRONEWS.CA

Two-quarterback systems rarely work.

That's because QBs not only have the CFL's biggest paycheques on any team, they also own the largest egos. It's that precarious balance Hamilton head coach Marcel Bellefeuille is trying to strike with Kevin Glenn and Quinton Porter, and so far it appears to be working.

The passing tandem combined for 232 yards in last week's win over B.C. with one touchdown and no picks while posting 42 points against the Lions.

If they can make it work, the Tabbies twosome presents an added threat for opposing defences because they play opposite styles, an advantage when opponents game plan to defend.

The added bonus for Bellefeuille is that he can leave the hot hand in the game without upsetting the backup, as both Glenn and Porter have seemingly bought into the sometimes awkward arrangement.

Lions limping at worst time: The B.C. Lions had a healthy shot at top spot in the CFL West until a recent rash of injuries that have threatened to sideline their amazing first-place run. The CFL's relatively small rosters leave teams vulnerable to a rash of injuries as the Lions are now realizing.

Not only has the Lions' eight-game winning streak come to a crashing halt, the team has incurred no less than 11 injuries in the past two weeks, possibly crippling its chances of claiming a bye to the West final. General manager Wally Buono is so desperate to replenish his roster he signed retired Canadian receiver Ryan Thelwell to fill a hole.

JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ Calgary quarterback Drew Tate throws against Saskatchewan last week. Tate's performance in Montreal this Sunday could make or break his bid to usurp Henry Burris as the Stampeders' starter.

The most painful blow is an upper back muscle injury to tailback Andrew Harris, who is sidelined indefinitely. Even QB Travis Lulay is hobbled by an ankle injury on the eve of their biggest game of the season Saturday against the visiting Edmonton Eskimos.

Burris quietly bides his time: Calgary's Henry Burris is certainly taking the high road thus far after being demoted to backup QB behind Drew Tate.

Burris, the reigning CFL Most Outstanding Player, who reportedly earns around $350,000 per season, could have reason to moan about his plight this season after being benched despite leading the Stamps to a playoff berth for the seventh straight season. That said, his play this year has been erratic at best and just one Grey Cup title since his arrival in 2005 is disappointing for a team that has been among the league's regular season elite during that time.

If Tate continues his strong play and assumes the No. 1 role permanently, Burris is destined to be moved — perhaps to Toronto where they would gladly make room for his marquee fan appeal and top-notch salary.

But we should be careful to not write off Burris. The Stamps travel to Montreal this week for one of their toughest tests of the season, a game that could reduce everyone's assessment of Tate after an easy first start last week against Saskatchewan.

New Raptors VP will be 'second in command': Colangelo

Bryan Colangelo has a new right-hand man.

The Toronto Raptors president and GM unveiled veteran NBA executive Ed Stefanski as the team's executive vice-president of basketball operations Thursday. And Colangelo left little doubt about Stefanski's position in the team's front-office hierarchy.

"Yes, he would be a second in command," Colangelo said during a news conference at Air Canada Centre. "This is a true second-in-command position.

"All those things that go into making decisions on draft-related matters, trade-related matters ... that scouting process, organization and oversight is something I think needs to be handled by someone with Ed's experience."

Stefanski said his main strength is concentrating on the positives while working diligently to fix any problems that exist.

"My motto is to accentuate the positive and work on the negatives," he said. "It's never the end of the world for me. I'm even-keeled, I don't get too high or low.

"I plan things, I'm a big whiteboard guy putting my ideas up there, and I think executing a plan is the crucial part. Once you've executed the plan no one knows what the results are and that's what you get graded on."

Stefanski joins a revamped Raptors front office. Maurizio Gherardini, the club's senior vice-president at the start of last season, and senior director of scouting Jim Kelly both remain but will handle different duties this year.
